

Ike's Physician Lectures Here

Dr. Paul Dudley White, personal physician to President Eisenhower, delivered the second annual Lyman Duff Memorial Lecture Wednesday night at Moyse Hall. He spoke on the need for the identification and protection of disease in susceptible persons.

"What is food for one may be poison for another", he quoted, but added that little has been done to apply this to the study of medicine.

Dr. White stressed the importance of every person's keeping a medical history — a record of physical functions such as pulse rate, and of having electrocardiographs and chest X-rays in early life. There are no adequate tables for certain cardiac and vascular functions, he said, since normal pressure and pulse rate varies from person to person.

"Why should we protect 100% of the population, if only 5% are susceptible?" asked Dr. White. "99% of the money spent on the study of heart disease goes to identification, but only 1% to the study of the host." Many heart conditions are hereditary or are aggravated by physical conditions, which may differ from person to person.

STUDY OF VICTIMS

"A close study of the racial and physical characteristics of coronary heart victims could be of great help to mankind to find the candidates for the disease," said Dr. White. Pointing out the many mistaken ideas people hold, he mentioned that work and physical exercise are not causes but aggravations of heart disease. Similarly, fatty diets and animal fats irritate conditions only in certain people.

Dr. White is a graduate of Harvard University, was one of the founders of the American Heart Association, and is presently one of the outstanding heart specialists in the United States.

Charity Drive Canvassing Continues

The Combined Charities Campaign officially ends today, but canvassing will continue for the next two weeks so that students who have not been contacted up to date could be reached.

Students who have not been contacted after Friday, November 28, may hand in their donations to George at the Tuckshop.

Because of the system of canvassing, no definite figures are available regarding the progress of the campaign; however, campaign officials estimate that a substantial amount is still needed if the campaign is to reach its goal of $5000.

Graduate students, because of their diversified residences, are being reached by mail, and the returns should begin to come in by the middle of next week.

50% of the total receipts will go to the World University Service, a mutual benefit organization for underprivileged students throughout the world. 40% will be sent to various local charities on the island of Montreal. The remaining 10% will be given to the Springhill Relief Fund.

The Principal Comments

Sir George Williams - A Growing Institution

by Henry F. Hall

Principal, Sir George Williams College

The growth of Sir George Williams College during the past few years is perhaps remarkable, but it is not at all unique. This development has been due to many factors. Primary, I think, are its attempts to meet the needs in evening education in a cosmopolitan, commercial and industrial community. Of equal importance, I believe, has been the friendly cooperation of McGill University. I have many personal reasons for emphasizing this which I do not need to enlarge upon, but I would like to take this opportunity of placing on record my appreciation of this helpful attitude. This has been evidenced by helpful advice around certain important issues, on the one hand, and by remarkable forbearance and toleration on the other.

A Special Issue

Because we feel that the students of the Province of Quebec must be united in order to improve their lot;

And, because we feel that the first step toward this unity is getting to understand one another;

And, because we feel that the only way to understand one another is by knowing all the facts;

We have devoted this issue to a study of our neighbour, Sir George Williams College. We hope this issue will be but the first step to a sincere cooperation between our schools.

The Editors

It is natural but still, I think, noteworthy that so many former Georgians have gone to McGill, and we are pleased to count among our student body and, of course, on our faculty many sons and daughters of old McGill. For some years now, Sir George Williams College has had more graduates in the Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research of McGill than has any other university except McGill itself. This, I repeat, is natural in that the two institutions are in the same city and Sir George Williams gives no graduate work. This fact itself shows, however, the cooperative relationship referred to above. Certain faculties and schools have also accepted a fair number of graduates of this College. Among these are Law, Social Work, Teacher Training, Library Science and others. Several graduates and undergraduates have entered the Faculty of Dentistry, to which we feel we have a special relationship in that it was the first faculty to accept our graduates and that several former students and graduates of Sir George Williams have received appointment to the staff.

EVENING EDUCATION

It is well known, of course, that Sir George Williams has emphasized evening education. In fact, it is among the larger evening colleges of North America. In my opinion, however, our chief achievement, if it can be so called, is the maintenance of a parallelism between the day and evening divisions. This, I think, is not too common, although I know of other institutions in which it exists. I have, of course, no authority to speak of future developments. These are the primary responsibility of the Board of Governors and the Corporation. However, it is my hope that in any future developments, the College may continue to perform the same basic function; namely undergraduate work in arts, science and commerce with parallel day and evening divisions. I am deeply conscious of the fact that we can improve both in quality and, perhaps, in quantity. However, I am firmly convinced that this College has a fundamental role in the life of the immediate community and in the area which we now attempt to serve.

In conclusion, may I express my appreciation to the "McGill Daily" for this friendly gesture, and through it, to the whole University for its helpful cooperative attitude over the years.

Students And Staff Walk Out In Paris

PARIS, Nov. 19 — Professors and students of the Faculty of Sciences at the University of Paris went on a thirty-six hour strike Wednesday in a protest against the lack of teachers and room to teach.

The Science faculty buildings of the University were constructed in 1896 with facilities, according to faculty members, for 2,200 students. More than 19,000 students are using these facilities this year, an increase of 3,000 over last year.

Students, many in white laboratory coats, and professors in their red, black and ermine academic robes gathered at a mass meeting which started the strike in the courtyard of the Sorbonne, the university's Faculty of Arts and Letters. Students and teachers gave speeches stating that it was impossible to work under present conditions. Large police forces were stationed in the area, but there was no violence.

French youth has been urged to enter the science field, as in other countries, but facilities have proven inadequate to meet the influx of students.

Daily as many as 1,000 students have attempted to fight their way into lecture halls designed to hold less than one-third that number.

To alleviate matters slightly, government officials have assigned lecture halls from other faculties to the faculty of Science, but this move does not provide a permanent solution.

Free Polio Shots Begin Next Week

All McGill students are eligible for the free polio shots which will be given next week at the expense of the provincial government. The clinic will be held in the Union Lounge next week from Monday till Friday, 12-2:30 pm.

All that is asked of students is that they register. Two shots will be given before Christmas and the third six months later.

The Quebec Command of the Canadian Legion, in conjunction with the Canadian March of Dimes, is sponsoring the clinic. The Salk vaccine, intended to prevent paralytic polio, was 80% effective in 1955. Since March 65,000-70,000 people have been vaccinated by the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis.

Quebec is the first province in which university students have had the opportunity of receiving free shots.

This Morning's Headlines News of National and World Significance

OTTAWA, Nov. 20—Competent informants predict that federal taxes will be raised next spring for the first time in eight years. The move would be designed to restrain consumer spending.

BERLIN, Nov. 20—Russian Ambassador Andre Smirnov has informed West German Chancellor Adenauer that Russia no longer recognizes the position of the western powers in Berlin.

QUEBEC, Nov. 20—The proposed Labor Party being established under the aegis of the Canadian Labor Congress will be leftist, said CLC President Claude Jodoin today.

Israeli Consul Speaks

Mr. Adin Talbar, Israeli consul for trade and commercial affairs in Canada, will address the McGill student body on the topic "University Student Life in Israel".

Mr. Talbar, an Israeli citizen since 1935, has distinguished himself internationally by his military and diplomatic career. He volunteered for service in the infantry of the Palestine Regiment, and was commissioned as an officer at the early age of twenty. During the Second World War, he fought in Italy in the famed Jewish Brigade.

SGWC Curriculum Is Not Easy

by Fred Gricman

Sir George Williams College is definitely not a haven for McGill's undergraduate failures, stated a high S. G. W. C. official yesterday.

Although many students who fail to make the grade at McGill are

New Engineering Course Now Part Of Curriculum

In September, 1958, Sir George Williams College expanded its curriculum to include an Engineering Program. At present one hundred students are taking advantage of the opportunities offered by this course. The small enrollment permits the instructor to give practically individual attention to each student. For example, there are only sixteen in the day section of the second year.

The course differs from its McGill counterpart in that it commences after Senior Matriculation. It continues for two years, after which the student receives a certificate. He may then proceed to a university and complete his engineering degree. The curriculum is much the same as McGill in order that the student may transfer to McGill for his last two years with a minimum of effort. The second year student may specialize in civil, mechanical, electrical or chemical engineering, but receives no instruction in Arts courses other than those necessary for Senior Matriculation.

The program offered by Sir George is not a completely new idea. It has been in force at Loyola for some time. This is the first time that night courses in Engineering have been offered. This opens the field to many people who would otherwise be unable to study this branch.

Professor Jack Bordan who heads the Engineering division, commented to the Daily that McGill had offered fine cooperation and was instrumental in the founding of the new division.

achieving of an academic degree. It would be difficult to convey the true story of the hopes and aspirations, the struggles and sacrifices, the perseverance and steady, dogged courage of the hundreds of people of this city for whom the 'midnight oil' is a constant daily ration and "for whom both ends of the candle burn in nightly oblation to the vision which they have set before themselves." The average length of time to complete the degree program in the evening is six to seven years. Others because of circumstances may work for ten to eleven years to reach their goal; many have not only completed their entire college requirements in the evening but have also fulfilled elementary and secondary school requirements at night in the Sir George Williams High School. Is it surprising that the entire staff of Sir George Williams College is filled with admiration for the courage and the tenacity of these evening students — and greatly appreciative of the intellectual ability and mature qualities of the population of the Evening Division of Sir George Williams College.

"The heights which great men reached and kept,

Were not attained by sudden flight,

But they, while their companions slept,

Were toiling upward, in the night."

allowed to enter Sir George, permission is given only after a thorough interview and tests by the student counselor, followed by a special faculty committee meeting which considers the future of the young man or woman "asking for another chance".

The administrative official also stated that nearly 50% of McGill's "failures" are refused admission annually to S.G.W.C. The same policy applies to any transfer student from a Canadian or U. S. University.

Students who are accepted must face a tough undergraduate curriculum, which does not differ a great deal from McGill's, or that of other higher educational institutions.

All Commerce, Arts, and Science undergraduates must take twenty-one courses for their respective degree requirements. Commerce and Arts students have to include at least three full courses in English and two additional courses in the Humanities and Social Sciences.

Up to this year, students of any faculty had to take three general survey courses in their first and second year. These were Humanities 210, Social Science 210, and Natural Science. The College's faculty felt that a student should have an insight into the many academic fields to be able to decide on what courses to concentrate. The new regulations, introduced this fall, permit a student not to take the pandemic courses. He must, however, take a number of subjects in each of these fields as alternates.

Students who plan to spend less time on their studies than is required for obtaining a degree qualify for a Diploma of Associate after completing a two year programme. This is applicable later if the holder of an Associate Diploma decides to work for a degree.

Tuition per year for Arts, Commerce, and Science is $300, compared with McGill's $550-$600. Each additional full course is $60 for day students and $50 for evening students. Seventeen various scholarships and bursaries are available to students who show high academic ability and a need for funds to continue their education. Loans can be obtained from the Sir George Williams College Alumni Association.

Unity for Action

Sir George Williams College has grown steadily during the last twenty years, in size as well as in stature. Today it is counted as one of Montreal's leading institutions of higher learning.

Founded by the YMCA as an evening school, its contribution to Canadian education has always been primarily in the field of the evening college. It has provided the benefits of education to thousands who otherwise would have been deprived of them. It has enriched the lives of countless persons, anxious to learn, but unable to devote the daytime hours to attending university.

Today Sir George is more than a mere night school. It operates on "two shifts" and during the day, the classrooms are crowded with young men and women studying everything from philosophy to engineering, from art to retailing.

It is because we feel that this young college plays an important role in the development of our city and our country and because we think that students at McGill should know more about their colleagues at SGWC that we devote this issue to a study of our neighbour and her problems.

It is particularly important for students of the Province of Quebec to know each other and to stand united. We share many common problems, problems unknown to our colleagues in other parts of Canada. We are the students who have to beg for ten months until we are granted an interview with our Prime Minister to discuss an archaic educational system. We are the students who have to walk out of classes in order to make the public aware of our conditions. We are the students who lag behind in the educational development of Canada.

We hope that this special issue will foster better understanding between the students of both universities. We must know each other if we are to act together and it is our duty to act.

Compulsory Insurance

Our Premier demonstrated his complete disregard for the safety of the citizens of Quebec when he went on record as stating that his government will never favour a compulsory insurance plan for motor vehicles in this province.

He stated that "compulsory insurance means that you oblige the citizen to spend $100 to $200 for insurance, but you do nothing to provide him with the means to buy this insurance." He further said that he does not favour setting up an "unsatisfied judgment fund" such as now exists in Ontario and other provinces. This system makes every motorist pay a fee (usually $1) towards a fund which is used to pay off debts of financially irresponsible drivers. This, the Premier says, "is a good case of making the good drivers pay for the bad drivers".

First of all, compulsory insurance on all cars on the road is the best form of protection for every citizen, whether he owns a car or not, against a financial calamity. The fact that all citizens are not provided with the means to buy insurance is at least equalled by the fact that citizens are also not provided with the means to buy automobiles. Driving a car for private purposes is a luxury, and insurance should be regarded as a part of that luxury.

Secondly, it is highly unlikely that a motorist who is financially responsible would complain about paying a small fee into a fund for his own protection. Although he is paying for the bad driver, it is much cheaper to pay the one dollar than to sustain a collision with a financially irresponsible vehicle owner.

Insurance rates in this province are the highest in Canada. The fact that there is no compulsory insurance partially accounts for this. It is improbable that introducing such legislation would raise the premiums — a fact which the Premier maintains.

The major reason, however, for the high premiums is the absence of enforcement of laws governing mechanical condition of vehicles on the road. It is a safe wager to say that a considerable portion of Quebec cars would not pass the mechanical safety inspection in Ontario, or the state of New York.

A change in the attitude of the present government is sorely needed.

Burning the Midnight Oil

Over 4,600 Students In SGWC Evening School

by Robert C. Rae
Dean, Sir George Williams College

Four thousand, six hundred and twenty persons are enrolled in classes in the Evening Division of Sir George Williams College for the academic year, 1958-59. Every week-day evening at dusk the area in the vicinity of Peel and St. Catherine Streets is crowded with people of all ages hurrying to classes in the College building on Drummond Street. One thousand, four hundred and forty-three are pursuing special interests as 'partials'; the remainder are seeking degrees in Arts, Science and Commerce or a Certificate in Engineering.

The Evening Division is an integral part of Sir George Williams College; indeed, it is from the evening educational programme of the Montreal Y.M.C.A. that the Day Division came into existence. This reverses the usual process whereby the evening educational offerings have grown out of the full-time, day university. There is one academic programme available to both day and evening students; there is one Faculty responsible for teaching of both day and evening classes. The same degrees are granted to day and evening students; the major difference is that one body of students receives its education in the day, and the other acquires it after normal working hours.

Who are these evening students? There are clerical and technical workers, accountants and bookkeepers, secretaries, salesmen and school teachers, draughtsmen, engineers and laboratory workers. Many come from the professions and as many confess to being unskilled labourers. There are nurses and office boys, managers and ministers, housewives and social workers, waitresses and private secretaries — people. Just people — of all kinds — but all of them with an idea, that life can hold more for them than it now holds.

It is true that most of this student population is in the 20 to 30 age range; but hundreds are in the 30's, scores are in the 40's many in the 50's and some are 60 years of age or better. Many times a grandmother has walked forward proudly to receive her degree; at this year's Fall Convocation, a mother and a daughter, both evening students, will be granted degrees. While most of these people live, necessarily, in the Montreal area, the distances travelled to and from school are, in many cases, considerable; many travel by passenger train from points well beyond the reach of the normal commuter services.

All parts of the world are represented in this student group; last year there were forty-seven different first-language groups represented on the College rolls. Industry and Commerce is more than adequately represented in this population; 54 corporations in the City of Montreal send 20 or more students to the Evening Division. Four organizations have three hundred or more employees seeking an education at Sir George after the five o'clock whistle blows.

All of these students have met the requirements for admission to a recognized Canadian university. Only a few are people who have failed in day college work — and all of these have had to re-qualify before being re-admitted. We must not assume that, because they are people who dropped out of day High or Elementary School, they could not have succeeded had they stayed here. The oft-quoted Harvard Report of a few years ago claims that fully 25% of the population are capable, intellectually, of completing four-year college education. The evening students at Sir George represent, mainly, the difference between the 25% who have the ability to go on to college and the approximate 4% who actually do graduate from college.

Sir George is sometimes referred to, popularly, as the 'college of the second chance'; it would be dangerous to refer to it as 'second class'. Graduates of the Evening College are competing favourably in graduate schools with fellow students who took their undergraduate work in the day-university. Evening students are winning scholarships and fellowships in important educational institutions in the United States and Canada. Almost 2% of the evening students enrolled during the 1957-58 academic year, not including those in the graduating class, qualified for the Dean's Honour List which recognizes outstanding scholastic achievement — the standard is, at least, 80% of straight A's in the equivalent of five full courses, or a normal full-time day-college programme. Evening students complete this course load through taking courses in both the normal academic year plus a thirteen-week summer Term.

The great majority of these students have a full-time day job; many of them with senior and executive responsibilities. More than 50% of them are married and many have families of two to three children. Getting an education means accepting a three-fold responsibility: the job, the family and the college. All members of the Faculty and Administration of the College are well aware of the countless sacrifices that are made by evening students and their families in the

by Magnus Flynn

Close personal contact between the individual student and administrative staff members has always been a proud feature in the operation of Sir George Williams College. Because of the increased enrollment in both our day and evening divisions, the attempt to maintain this intimate relationship has become strained and weakened. We were faced with the reality that the administrative staff could no longer expect to do its normal job and still maintain its interest in extracurricular activities.

Thus was born the Student Affairs Office at Sir George Williams College, which firmly believes that the extracurricular program plays an important educational role in the total development of the student, and that it has a responsibility to provide advice and act as a resource contact for the various student activities.

It should be stressed that this new administrative service does not intend to dictate or impose its opinions on the students. It is solely a resource contact for student program. In many cases we are able to supply important background material and assist in solving the various problems which arise.

Most of the restrictive policies which are in effect were developed by students-staff committees. We also have regular meetings with the student leaders and, once a year, they have a dinner meeting with the Board of Governors. We feel that this relationship creates a climate of trust, and the results are most beneficial to all.

WORK TOGETHER

Here at Sir George, we have a special situation. The College is divided into two divisions: the Day and the Evening. Accordingly, we have the Students Undergraduate Society, representing the day students, and the Evening Students Association representing those who attend at night. These two bodies operate independently and each have their own unique projects and their own particular problems. In some cases, however, where a particular program has mutual values, they work together.

As an example of this, we have the Georgian Film Society. Many people are confused to find both day and evening students on its executive. The explanation is that it is a joint project undertaken by both societies, and participated in by students from both divisions. The college newspaper is another project of this nature, which is jointly financed and operated by both groups. In all there are 35 clubs active on our campus and more than half of these are jointly sponsored and operated.

A feature of interest to McGill students is that many of the activities at Sir George have been adopted from the McGill student program. As examples, there is our cultural program and the Garnet Key Society. In many other cases, the students of both institutions have exchanged ideas and cooperated in joint ventures to the benefit of both.

ATHLETIC PARTICIPATION

An important part of the extracurricular activity at Sir George is the athletic program. This is governed by the Athletic Council, which includes, in addition to six students, representatives from the faculty, the alumni, the administrative staff and the board of governors.

The college is a member of the Ottawa St. Lawrence Intercollegiate Athletic Association, and takes part in golf, tennis, swimming, water polo, soccer, squash, basketball and hockey competitions. Since these activities are (Continued on page 7)

Constant Expansion

One of the old buildings which was torn down in order to build the new Sir George Williams College. Before 1956, classes had been held in synagogue, the Salvation Army, the Linton Apartments, and all over Stanley and Drummond Streets, as well as in the Y.M.C.A. building. $3,300,000 was raised by 1954, and in 1956, the College, while still using twenty classrooms in the Y.M.C.A. building itself, moved into the new building on Drummond.

Founded in 1873

Expansion Is Theme Of SGWC's History

by Anne Begor

Sir George Williams College developed from educational work begun in 1873 by the Y.M.C.A. in Montreal. In that year, evening courses in vocational and educational subjects were given for the first time by the Y.M.C.A. to employed young men; this was the foundation of the Y.M.C.A. schools. By 1920, people had begun to take such an interest in this opportunity of furthering their education that expansion was necessary, and an evening high school program was begun. Six years later, the name Sir George Williams College was given to the Y.M.C.A.'s educational program, and its doors were opened to women as well as men. Sir George Williams, after whom the college was named, was a prominent English businessman who, with twelve associates, founded the Y.M.C.A. in London in 1844. He served as treasurer, then president, of the Y.M.C.A., and was knighted in 1894.

The College continued to expand at an amazing rate, and in 1928 the Y.M.C.A. held a building campaign to raise $1,500,000, part of which was to be used for enlarging the facilities of the College. Even before the new portion of the Y.M.C.A. building had been completed, the College extended its program, and the first evening courses at university level were given. First Year of Arts, Science, Commerce, and pre-Engineering. In 1930, the College occupied the new addition to the Y.M.C.A. building, and continued to grow so quickly that the building was expanded time and again until it included four building annexes.

In 1931, the Junior College was organized, which offered two full years of work at university level in Arts, Science, and Commerce, leading to the Diploma of Associate. These courses were still evening ones, but a year later, day courses were given also in the same three fields. In 1934, the College expanded still further, and the full four-year college program, leading to a Bachelor's Degree, was offered in Arts, Science, and Commerce. The first two students graduated from the College in 1936.

Sir George Williams College is justly proud of its assumption of responsibility in the preparation of veterans for College Entrance at the close of World War II. Veterans poured into Quebec, eager to enter University and continue their education, which had been interrupted by the war. There was no special organization set up to look after them; the Protestant School Board did not want them, as it felt the veterans should not be mixed with the young children in its schools; McGill could not handle them. Sir George Williams College, rising to the challenge, opened a branch of the College on Claremont and prepared over 1,000 veterans to write the Entrance examinations, which were set by McGill.

Until 1948, the College was conducted under the terms of the charter of the Montreal Y.M.C.A. In March of that year, however, the Provincial Legislature granted the College a special Charter "In order that the work which it is doing may be carried on more effectively and advantageously." This established the College as a body corporate and politic, for the purpose of conducting a college or university in the province of Quebec, establishing faculties, and granting degrees.

The continual expansion of the College soon caused it to spill out of the Y.M.C.A. building. Space was leased all up and down Stanley and Drummond Streets; classes were held in the synagogue across the street, and the Salvation Army also housed classes. Some lectures took place as far away as Mansfield Street, and up at the Linton Apartments. It was obvious that this state of affairs could not continue; administration was extremely difficult, and the College was forced to turn down the applications of many young men and women who earnestly desired a university education. By 1954, the enrollment of the College exceeded 6,000, and a special committee was formed to study the problem. That fall the Y.M.C.A. Sir George Williams College Capital Funds Campaign was launched, with an objective of $3,300,000. By 1954, the generosity of the public had met the objective, and the construction of a new College building was begun. In 1956, the College, while retaining the use of twenty classrooms in the Y.M.C.A. building itself, moved into its new building.

In 1957 a two-year Engineering program was added to the curriculum.

Sir George Williams College graduates include radio announcers, lawyers, and presidents of firms. A prominent graduate is the present Postmaster-General, Mr. William Hamilton.

Although it is as yet a young college, Sir George Williams has already made important contributions to the city of Montreal and the province as a whole. It has become a part of the community, and is likely to achieve even greater prominence and respect in future years.

Future Expansion Sets A Problem For Planners

by Douglass Burns Clarke
Vice Principal and Registrar
Sir George Williams College

After over twenty-five years of rapid expansion which has seen Sir George Williams College double its size three times, the time has come for a detailed review of the present situation as it affects the further growth and development of the college. To this end, the Board of Governors have appointed a Planning Committee made up of Governors, Administration, and Faculty, whose responsibility it will be to make recommendations regarding immediate and long term needs of the College in terms of its growth. As this Committee has not yet brought in any report, it would be misleading to make any statement that might be construed as a definite or official statement of the College's plans for its future.

It must be emphatically understood that the following predictions are very personal, based upon the past experience of the writer with the growth of the college. They do not express in any way the opinions of the Board or of the Faculty.

Whether we at Sir George Williams may like it or not, the realistic position is that the future of this College depends directly upon the future plans and growth of McGill University. A vigorous, young college growing to maturity in the shadow of an older and great Canadian University, Sir George Williams College has never considered itself as running in competition with McGill, but as complementing McGill's work in meeting the higher educational needs of the community. It is to be expected that this attitude towards our function as an educational institution will be continued in the future as the best way of making the most suitable contribution to education in this area.

We do not feel that this means that Sir George Williams College is getting only the left-over students who cannot get into McGill, or is performing only the left-over functions. The needs of the community have far outstripped the means of any one institution to meet them. This is particularly so in terms of the needs for the broader field of general education at the higher level in Arts, Science, and Commerce.

With McGill's heavy commitments in graduate and professional work, there is a definite limit to her means of providing services in these areas, services that must be met in the face of the radical changes taking place in our society which call for more educated people to cope with the increasingly complex problems of our civilization. It is likely that Sir George Williams College will consider this its primary task both for its growing day division, and for the thousands of evening students who annually turn to this college as the only means of obtaining the educational opportunities they need. Indeed, the first demands upon the college and its growth, will probably be those of evening undergraduate students, and the needs of Montreal firms who now turn to the college for the supply of trained personnel or for educational openings for their employees.

As the residuary legatee of education in the Montreal area, the college is traditionally sensitive to such demands, and where the needs are consonant with the objectives of higher education and are not being provided for elsewhere, such demands and needs are likely to determine in part lines of future growth.

The immediate future for Sir George Williams College, then, will probably be directed by a constant attempt to perfect the job it is now doing, to round out its program while consistently maintaining its standards, and to continue its immediate services to employers and employees of Montreal business and industry. It faces at the same time a heavy pressure for admission from a growing population. Whether it will continue to operate in one centralized unit, or whether it will subdivide itself into branches or junior colleges in various areas, has not yet been decided. It would seem, however, that the challenge in the present need cannot be ignored, and that ways and means must be found in the near future whereby the opportunities offered by the College can be opened to more and more qualified students seeking general education by day or by night.

Student Affairs

"intercollegiate", they are restricted to day students. On the "non-intercollegiate" level the college competes in junior and juvenile basketball, rifle, curling, skiing and bowling.

While we do not have a compulsory physical program, our intramural activities are popular and well attended. In addition, each day student receives a full physical membership in Central Y.M.C.A., while evening students are given limited privileges.

I should mention that we have worked closely with the McGill Director of Athletics, for many years, and have received a good deal of help from him, and his staff. If our teams were a little stronger, I believe that a healthy series of competitions could be developed between the two institutions.

CO-OPERATION KEYNOTE

One golden thread can be seen to run throughout in everything that is done at Sir George Williams College. The students do what they themselves want to do, and they do it in sincere cooperation with the policy of the institution as it is interpreted by the Student Affairs Office. This cooperation is the key to its success. It is based on the staff's respect for the judgment and maturity of the students, and the students' desire to act in a manner which will never cause disrespect for the educational institution of which he is a part.

NFCUS LIFE Plan

Exclusive to University Students at this UNMATCHED low cost.

$10,000 for only $35.00 PER YEAR

$5,000 for only $17.50 PER YEAR

Underwritten and guaranteed by Canadian Premier Life Insurance Company — a Canadian Company with federal charter, licensed in all provinces of Canada, from coast-to-coast and backed financially by insurance interests with assets exceeding $330 millions.

PARTICULARS OF NFCUS LIFE PLAN

THE PLAN—Ordinary Life with special low-rate term insurance for first 10 years or to age 35, whichever is the shorter period.

AMOUNT OF INSURANCE—Minimum, $5,000. Maximum —no arbitrary limit, individual consideration.

THE PREMIUM—$3.50 per $1,000 annually during the term period; Ordinary Life rate thereafter. Ordinary Life rates are included and guaranteed in the NFCUS LIFE Plan policy.

ELIGIBILITY—All students who are members of the representative student society of this university are eligible for NFCUS LIFE Insurance.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF INSURANCE—Insurance under each policy takes effect immediately upon the issue of the policy by the Company, whether the first premium has been paid or not.

TOTAL DISABILITY BENEFIT—If totally disabled your protection is continued in force without further payment of premiums. If still disabled when term period expires, your protection is automatically continued in force on the Ordinary Life plan for the same amount of insurance with all premiums on the new plan waived until death or earlier recovery.

PRIOR CONVERSION OPTION—While the plan automatically becomes Ordinary Life at the end of the term period, there is an option for prior conversion to Ordinary Life at guaranteed rates without further evidence of insurability. Also, conversion to any Limited Payment Life, Endowment or Pension plan may be arranged.

CONVERSION AGE—NFCUS LIFE Plan policies may be converted at the attained age at the date of conversion; or at the age as of the original date of issue of the policy, in which case credit will be given for ALL premiums paid in addition to the conversion credit of $2.50 per $1,000 (see below).

REDUCTION IN FIRST YEAR PREMIUM ON CHANGE OR CONVERSION—A reduction of $2.50 per $1,000 of insurance will be allowed from the first premium payable upon the change to Ordinary Life at the end of the term period, or upon conversion of your NFCUS LIFE policy to any plan at any time. For example, if converted at age 25 to $10,000 Ordinary Life the first year premium would be $125.40 reduced by $25.00 leaving a net amount payable of $100.40.

ADDITIONAL COVERAGE FOR ACCIDENTAL DEATH—Policies may include an Accidental Death Provision at an extra premium of $1.25 per $1,000. This provision will pay the amount of the Accidental Death Benefit in addition to the face amount of the policy in the event of accidental death.

GENEROUS SETTLEMENT OPTIONS—The NFCUS LIFE Plan contains attractive settlement options whereby the insured at maturity, or the beneficiary, may elect to take the proceeds of the policy in a variety of instalments or on a life annuity basis guaranteed for either 10 years or 20 years but payable in any event for life.

RIGHT TO ASSIGN—You have the right to assign your NFCUS LIFE policy. This is valuable as an assistance in obtaining loans (for example, for educational purposes) as in this way the lender may be given a guarantee of payment in the event of premature death.

GRACE PERIOD—A period of 30 days of grace is allowed for the payment of any premium including the first.

NON-PARTICIPATING—The NFCUS LIFE Plan is non-participating during the term period, however, at conversion, you may select either a participating or non-participating permanent plan.

AVIATION COVERAGE—Death occurring as a result of air flight is covered except where you are the pilot or member of the crew.

NO WAR CLAUSE—There is no restriction as to the payment of death benefits if death occurs as a result of war, declared or undeclared, except as outlined for air flight.

EVERY STUDENT NEEDS LIFE INSURANCE!

BECAUSE you need to begin your program NOW—the student who enters his life career with a financial independence program ALREADY STARTED will, other things equal, achieve financial independence sooner — and on a higher ultimate level. NFCUS LIFE provides this "starter" at a price you can afford.

BECAUSE you need to insure the investment in your education — to protect those who have protected you. Every year, through death by accident or natural causes, there are students who will never return. If someone has sacrificed to help you through University, be sure they are not left with expenses and loans to pay.

BECAUSE only thus can you protect your "insurability." Insurance bought now guarantees your right to permanent insurance for life regardless of changes in your health.

WHY THE NFCUS PLAN IS YOUR FIRST CHOICE

Remarkable savings achieved by NFCUS mass buying power — an advantage gained for University students through their association together in NFCUS.

Tailored for University students and available exclusively through affiliation with NFCUS.

The group principle brings equal protection to NFCUS students of all ages — up to 35! Non-Canadian students are also eligible if attending Canadian Universities.

A ONCE-IN-A-LIFETIME OPPORTUNITY

Your affiliation in NFCUS makes it possible for you to own $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or EVEN MORE life insurance on your own exclusive plan covering you during your years at University and several years thereafter if necessary, at an exceedingly low rate, — then, when you are working in your chosen field (or practicing your profession) and are financially established, you begin to pay the premium for permanent Ordinary Life insurance — also at guaranteed low rates.

SPECIAL ENROLLMENT OFFER TO 1st YEAR STUDENTS ONLY.

First year students may enroll on the attached short Form "A" application for up to $10,000 NFCUS LIFE Insurance until December 31. Thereafter complete medical evidence of insurability will be required. A medical examination is not generally required during the enrollment period however the Company reserves the right to request a medical or to decline any application. Students other than first year students may also use this short form and a regular application will be forwarded by the Company.

TO ENROL...

Complete the application printed below, clip and mail. On amounts up to $10,000, a medical examination is not generally required.
